TOKIO, November 1.—A brilliant celebration yesterday of the birthday anniversary of the Emperor Yoshihito ushered in the coronation season, the most notable event of which will occur November 10, when the emperor will formally accede to the throne of Nippon.

Looking down from the tall tree close White saw many strange things. At least they were strange to him. In the birds, something like Mrs. Grouse, only understand why they didn't fly out. He thought them very stupid. Some ever even hint that she had laid an egg. Such things are not told there. It isn't safe, and a bird who did tell would be thought erazy.

But the strangest thing Bob looked down on was—guess what! It was a little brown bird who looked just like himself only different. It was his lost darling, the one whom he had last seen falling to the ground after the bang of the hunter's terrible gun, and whom he had thought killed. Bob knew him right away. Of course. And yet he looked strangely different. This was because there were strips of cloth bound around his body to keep that broken wing in place so that it could and would mend. Of course, Bob had never seen anything like that before, and he didn't know just what to make of it.

But he didn't waste any time thinking about it. With a glad little cry he flew down into the henyard. Then he discovered why his lost baby (he wasn't a baby any longer, but Bob thought of him as such) hadn't come to him instead of calling him way over there. He hadn't come because he couldn't. He was a prisoner in a whre pen. There was wire over the top as well as around the sides. The little Bob White was a prisoner.

At first Bob thought this terrible, but there is a great deal of shrewdness and wisdom in that handsome little head of his, and after he had been told all the things that handsomed to the

COAL FAMINE IN DENMARK.

Government Planning to Relieve Sitation by Mining in Greenland. respondence of the Associated Press.

COPENHAGEN, October 15 .- The Danish government is taking steps to Denmark. The coal famine, in fact, is so serious here that the government is planning to relieve the situation in part by cutting wood from the government forests. Steps are also being taken to increase the production of peat.

Coal has heretofore been mined in Greenland only in an experimental way, but the deposits there, in the opinion of experts, are very extensive. The heat-ing qualities of Greenland coal, however, are not regarded as equal to the English variety.

The government is also taking a new interest in the copper mines of this far northern colony, thinking that the mines are capable of more extensive development, which would be prontable at the present time.
